Learning the Dutch Language

Introduction

Whether your stay in the Netherlands is temporary or long term, learning Dutch is important. Being able to communicate in the native language opens doors to the labour market and speeds up social integration. Whether you want to shop easily, read ads and actually understand them, ask for directions or help someone else, a basic knowledge of Dutch is essential. Moreover, for some non-EU citizens, a basic knowledge of Dutch has recently become a prerequisite for obtaining a visa and authorisation to stay in the Netherlands.

Language schools abound in the Netherlands, offering everything from basic survival Dutch to courses that prepare you for proficiency exams. To provide you with an overview of what is available, we have gathered the information necessary to get you started learning Dutch.

The first part of this booklet focuses on learning Dutch as a requirement for obtaining a visa or resident’s permit (Machtiging tot Voorlopig Verblijf) or for a work or study visa. It also explains the procedures for obtaining the NT2 qualification. In the second and main part of this booklet, we have compiled a list of language schools/institutes. While it is not comprehensive, we have ensured that the contact details are accurate. The third part is an acknowledgement of the sources we have consulted. Other ACCESS information booklets that are available for purchase are also included.

We hope that these brief entries, arranged alphabetically by location, will save you time and help you to better evaluate your options.

Dutch as a requirement

Dutch as a requirement to enter the Netherlands
The Civic Integration Act came into force in the Netherlands on 1 January 2007. The Act stipulates that everyone who immigrates to the Netherlands and lives in the Netherlands must learn Dutch and understand how Dutch society works. This is referred to as civic integration.

Immigrants subject to civic integration must pass the Civic Integration Examination. In cases where an immigrant is exempt from civic integration requirement under the Civic Integration Act, he/she is still required to the Civic Integration Examination to obtain... certain permanent residence permits or to qualify for continued residence. Contact local authorities to find out whether you must undergo civic integration and the steps you need to follow to obtain the civic integration certificate.

Nationals from the EU/EEA, Australia, Canada, Japan, Monaco, New Zealand, Switzerland and the United States, as well as temporary knowledge migrants are exempted from this requirement. Family members of EU citizens may also be exempted from taking this examination.

Civil integration abroad

This examination tests one's basic knowledge of Dutch and Dutch society. The examination is taken orally in Dutch at the Dutch Embassy or Dutch Consulate General abroad. The examination consists of two parts.

Part 1 tests knowledge of Dutch society. Test questions cover topics such as the history of the Netherlands and its form of government.

Part 2 tests knowledge of the Dutch language. It includes the repetition of sentences and the answering of brief questions. The examination fee is currently €350.

Go to www.ind.nl for more information about the naturalisation exam (inburgeringsexamen).

Naturalisation Service (IND): A brochure explaining all the steps to take this exam can be found at:

Information about the education packet is available at

Dutch as a requirement to stay in the Netherlands

If you are planning to stay in the Netherlands long term, it is essential to integrate into Dutch society. To that end, the Dutch Government instituted the Integration Act, which makes following an integration course (inburgering) compulsory for most people who come to live in the Netherlands. In addition, an integration course may also be compulsory for people who have lived in the Netherlands for some time. The government provides courses for all people who are required to follow this integration course. Proof of integration can be provided by one of the following: integration exam (inburgeringsexamen), language proficiency exam, (NT2 Staatsexamen), vocational diploma (beroepsonderwijs), the short exemption test (De korte vrijstellingstoets).
The naturalisation exam (inburgeringsexamen)
To obtain Dutch citizenship, you will have to take this exam. In the course preparation for it you will learn the Dutch language as well as learn about life in the Netherlands. The approximate cost of this exam is €230. More information: www.ind.nlen/Images/bro_inburg_buitenland_tcm6-150503.pdf

NT2 language proficiency exam (NT2 Staatsexamens)
The NT2 State Examination is taken under the auspices of the Dutch Ministry of Education, Culture and Sciences. The examination is intended for adults and young adults from foreign countries, who would like to work or study in the Netherlands. The examination will result in a diploma, which certifies proficiency in the Dutch language to start study programme in Dutch or to work.

The NT2 State Examination consists of two programmes:

Exam Programme I: For people who are looking for a course or a job in the Netherlands at a lower level, but are still above the unskilled labour level.

Exam Programme II: For people who have previously taken a course, which will enable them to follow a course at either an intermediate or higher level, or to be completed at that level. With reference to the Common European Framework of Reference for Languages of the European Board, both exam programmes are at level B, “independent user”.

Both exams are divided into four main sections: reading, listening, speaking and writing. All four sections are covered independently. A certificate of proficiency is awarded provided a satisfactory result is achieved. Four certificates for one programme entitle the student to a NT2 State Examination Diploma (I or II). The NT2 State Examination can be taken only in the Netherlands.

For more information about these exams, materials to study, list of institutions offering training for the NT2, go to: www.expertisecentrumnt2.nl
Learning the Dutch Language

The vocational diploma (Beroepsonderwijs Diploma)
This option is designed for those who, aside from learning Dutch, want vocational training. This programme takes longer than the others because it requires focus on the chosen theme. Professional qualification (MBO-1 and MBO-2) is awarded upon successful completion.

The short exemption test (De Korte Vrijstellingstoets)
The short exemption test is an option for those who are already proficient in the language, which means you can understand Dutch and make you understood without additional lessons.
The examinations are held several times a year at various locations in the Netherlands. Be aware that there is a deadline for registration and fee payment that precedes the examination date. You will not be allowed to take the exam if you have not registered and paid the exam fee before the deadline. For more information, contact city hall in your city of residence. For a complete list, go to: http://almanak.overheid.nl

Integration facilities
The Dutch government intends for all newcomers to learn Dutch even if they are not required to follow the integration process (inburgering). This usually includes citizens of the European Union. Even when they are not required by law to learn Dutch, it is highly recommended for them to do so, to facilitate integration into Dutch society. These candidates may be eligible to obtain financial assistance from the social services to follow the course. For more information, contact the social services at city hall.
In Amsterdam, see: www.inburgering.amsterdam.nl
In The Hague, call (070) 302 60 00 or visit the website: www.inburgerendenhaag.nl

Integration budget
There are two types of integration budgets. The first one is general and it includes the education in some centres attached to the social services of each city council. Normally, they will include the well-known educational centre ROC. There is another type of budget, called personal inburgering budget, which is assigned to people with high levels of education and are able to learn the language at an accelerated pace, generally. This includes language training in universities.

Each city council has its own rules in this regard, so the best way to learn more about the possibilities is to contact the social services of your municipality, which will direct you to the service inburgering point in your city of residence.

Language institutes
There are several types of language institutes in the Netherlands, among them: private schools, universities and colleges, (see our list in the following section) international schools (scholengemeenschappen – see our list in the following section). Course levels range from beginner to advanced and can include specific courses for certain professions. Some schools are accredited.
Learning the Dutch Language

Courses are available on a part-time or full-time basis and can be given at the workplace. Most require attendance at a language laboratory. Choices can be made between individual or group instruction; private schools can tailor the course to individual needs.

Dutch public universities or volksuniversiteiten are open to everyone regardless of previous training, age or background. Courses are followed in groups in an informal atmosphere, which makes learning easier and more pleasant. Although the wide variety of courses offered at volksuniversiteit are taught by expert teachers, they do not lead to a diploma or degree. There are about one hundred volksuniversiteiten, which reach about 200,000 students annually. All are autonomous, non-profit foundations. Some, not all, local governments have subsidised these schools with financial or material aid, so fees from school to school will vary. Go to www.volksuniversiteit.nl to find a school near you.

Courses given at ROCs (Regionaal Opleidings Centrum) are subsidised and are heavily subscribed. Registration at a ROC may require compliance with certain criteria e.g. a valid residence permit, an address in the locality of the school, unemployed status, etc. Prep courses for the NT2 Exam are usually offered.

How to begin
First decide what kind of course you want to follow and where. Then, you will need to confirm dates, textbooks and fees. If you have a previous knowledge of Dutch, you will be, most likely, required to do a placement test (fees are possible).

Dutch for Beginners intensive language course offered through ACCESS
At Home Abroad – Access Nederland’s course for beginners is an intensive four-week course for those who want to make a running start with learning Dutch. In addition, you are expected to prepare for each class on your computer at home, with the help of the CD-ROM that accompanies the course book. On average this takes an additional twelve hours per week. In short: it is a course for people who can invest a fair amount of time in a concentrated period. At the end of the course you will be able to have short conversations on everyday subjects such as shopping, food, housing, travelling, going out, health, relationships, asking for directions, making appointments, giving your opinion and making inquiries at the municipality. Simple writing assignments are also part of the programme.

Learning Dutch with “At Home Abroad” means:
- Serious learning in a relaxed and sociable environment
- A course leader with over thirty years of language teaching experience
Learning the Dutch Language

- Groups of four to six people
- Main focus on conversation
- 90% of the lessons in Dutch only
- English translation of wordlists, standard phrases and points of grammar are provided
- Some four hours preparation on the computer at home per class
- Time for personal questions and socialising half an hour before and after the lessons

Teach yourself Dutch
Dutch is not as difficult as it seems at first glance. Learning Dutch can even be fun, if enough time is taken to understand the dynamics of the language and attempts are made to speak Dutch whenever possible. It is full of expressions that are the best sample of the Dutch society.

If you are not up to following a formal Dutch course, you can always learn it from home at your own pace. The internet has endless tools to learn languages, many of them free of charge.

A voluntary organisation that helps you feel at home
Netherlands Guild is an umbrella organisation of approximately 65 guilds. Guilds are voluntary associations whose members are 50 years and older. Members share professional or hobby knowledge, expertise and experience with others. Individuals, non-profit organisations and entrepreneurs have free use of their services. Guild volunteers advise on all areas, give lectures, organise tours or converse with Dutch native speakers. There are approximately 6000 active members. www.gilde-nederland.nl
Classes for children
Children learn faster than adults, but require a different method of instruction. There are several international schools which offer special courses for children. Private institutes such as: Lorre Language Club: http://www.lorrelanguageclubs.nl also provide courses for children.
